

Membership June 2020

As our nation begins to open its doors and life slowly creeps back to “normal”, Scouting has emerged as a program that can stay the course. The creativity of unit leaders and Scouts alike has been exciting to see; the amount of care and support that Scouts have poured into their community all across the nation has been inspiring. We can all be proud to be Scouts!

Even though summer camping experiences have been altered or cancelled, Scouting is still happening in smaller groups, including at the family level. This is a great time to advertise for all of the wonderful activities your unit will do in the coming months! Local advertising on social media sites like Facebook and Nextdoor can drive interested parents to your www.Beascout.org page where they can inquire directly to unit leaders about when they can join local scouting units.

Of course, units should adhere to CDC guidelines, state and local advice for gatherings as well as communicate with their Chartering Organizations to see when Scouting programs will be able to operate normally at these organizations.

When this all passes, Scouting will be the adventure that local families need to get back outdoors, to have fun, and to Be Prepared! Make sure you keep telling new families how they can join the adventure. For more information about Scouting at home, please click here.
